

IFSL Equilibrium Adventurous

Portfolio A Acc | July 2020

The Fund aims to deliver returns greater than inflation over a minimum of 5 years, through a combination of capital growth, that is profit on investments, and income paid out of investments, such as interest and dividends, after any charges have been taken out of the Fund. However, there is no certainty this will be achieved. Over the longer term, any 10 year period, the Fund aims to deliver an average of inflation plus 5.5% per annum. Inflation is measured as the UK Consumer Prices Index for these purposes.

Commentary

After the precipitous fall in stock markets during February and March, followed by a very sharp bounce in April and May, June was relatively quiet!

The FTSE 100 was at 6,166 at close on 1 June and then ended the month at 6,169, almost exactly the same level. This doesn't quite tell the full story however, as we saw some sharp daily movements with several 2%+ positive days and two days where markets dropped by over 3%.

Investors are having a difficult time trying to factor in new bits of information, both positive economic data as economies re-open, and further concerns about the virus. For example, the recent rise in cases in America is worrying and if it continues it could threaten the recent outperformance of US stocks.

June was a quieter month for changes to the portfolio. We did increase exposure to corporate bonds at the expense of alternative equity, as well as making further changes to our equity mix by reducing UK equity.

In particular, we have reduced our exposure to UK equity income, in expectation of further dividend cuts.

In general, we remain optimistic for equity returns taking an 18 month view, but somewhat nervous of the potential for a further pull back in the short term. As a result, we are retaining a slight overweight to equities relative to our usual holding, but balancing this out with extra cash and high quality fixed interest, including government bonds.

We still see much of the best value in Asian stocks. Whilst we still think certain UK stocks look good value, concerns about Brexit talks could have an impact and has already hit the value of sterling.

We also have a positive view on corporate bonds which generally provide higher yields than they did a few months ago.
