

IFSL Equilibrium Adventurous

Portfolio A Acc | August 2020

The Fund aims to deliver returns greater than inflation over a minimum of 5 years, through a combination of capital growth, that is profit on investments, and income paid out of investments, such as interest and dividends, after any charges have been taken out of the Fund. However, there is no certainty this will be achieved. Over the longer term, any 10 year period, the Fund aims to deliver an average of inflation plus 5.5% per annum. Inflation is measured as the UK Consumer Prices Index for these purposes. The Fund will invest at least 80% in other funds and investment trusts (collectively 'Investment Funds').

Commentary

After a strong recovery over the past few months, markets had something of a wobble towards the end of July.

An increase in new cases of the virus in a number of countries, coupled with some disappointing results from several companies, has given markets something of a “reality check”.

To our minds none of this new data was a great surprise. However, seeing some of the earnings and economic numbers in black and white has been quite sobering. Markets dropped over the last week of the month, with the FTSE 100 falling below 6,000 for the first time since May.

We remain positive about stockmarkets if we are taking a one or two year view, but have always been wary of a short term pull back. Our general view is that markets are unlikely to re-test the lows of March given the amount of cash investors still hold. We expect many are waiting to “buy the dip” and would use volatility as a buying opportunity.

That said, the direction of the market will be largely determined by developments with the virus in the short term, and so we could see some large moves in either direction.

We have not made many changes to portfolios over the past month. In general, we retain a slight overweight exposure to equities when we factor in alternatives and defined returns. However, we are trying to balance this out with extra cash and high quality fixed interest, including government bonds.

We still see much of the best value in Asian stocks. Whilst we still think certain UK stocks look good value, concerns about Brexit talks could have an impact and is one reason the UK continues to underperform.

We also have a positive view on corporate bonds which generally provide higher yields than they did a few months ago.
