Commentary

The encouraging news regarding the vaccines for Covid-19 proved to be the catalyst markets needed to push ahead. Despite the prospect of further lockdowns in the short-term, the sense that life and economy could return to some form of normality in the near future lifted many markets by double-digit percentages in November.

The table of the best performing stocks in the Portfolio over the last 3 months reflects the expectation that companies that suffered badly as a result of the pandemic, like Jet2 and Johnson Service Group, are starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Ten investee companies provided trading and profit announcements during November. The numbers were divergent with some making losses and paying no dividends, and others such as IG Design, Iomart and AB Dynamic, reporting resilient trading and paying the same level of dividends as last year. In general, the outlook statements were "cautiously optimistic" and balance sheets remain in decent shape.

There was one change in Portfolio holdings this month due to the company Abcam listing its shares on the Nasdaq US stock exchange in addition to the AIM market. This listing could be considered a 'dual listing' by HMRC and therefore impact the Business Relief qualification of the shares.

As such, the decision was taken to divest and redeploy the capital in Ideagen, a company that specialises in software and services to organisations operating within highly-regulated industries such as aviation, financial services, life science, healthcare and manufacturing.
